Porches taking centre stage

Culture Days. Trip to Boston planted seed for PegCity PorchFest

BERNICE PONTANILLA

A new music festival is putting Winnipeg porches in the spotlight.

Organizers of PorchFest, which runs Saturday from noon until 3:45 p.m. at three homes and a church along the border of West Broadway and Wolseley, said the goal of this new event is to bring neighbours and local music-lovers together.

Lisa Moore, a University of Manitoba master's student, said she came across the idea during a trip to Boston in August. The idea is simple: People or musical groups perform on people's porches, like it's a stage, for free.

"A cool part of town is called Jamaica Plain, and they had a Jamaica Plain PorchFest, and I thought we have a lot of porches

Rain or shine

PegCity PorchFest will take place rain or shine at 146 Sherbrook Ave., 14 Fawcett, 45 Purcell and the stoop at Westminster Church, so organizers ask attendees to dress appropriately for the outdoor weather and bring a chair or blanket.

- They also encourage people to bring loonies, toonies and paper money to toss in the hat for the performers.
- For more info, visit the PorchFest page on Facebook, follow #PegCityPF on Twitter or email pegcityporchfest@gmail.com.

es and more musicians per capita than almost any city you can think of, this would be a good idea," she said.

She presented the idea to her friends Diana Fred and Allison Fenske, and in less than a month the fest was planned.

Fred said they purposely started out small, but have the goal of expanding in future years to include more neighbourhoods. "People are going to come outside and see what's going on and you're going to see who lives there and meet your neighbours," Fred, a scientist, added. "Maybe they're not your next-door neighbours, but it's going to be people in the community."

Fenske said this year's PorchFest, part of Culture Days, features acoustic music, with performers doing originals as well as cover songs during 45-minute sets.

"At least three of the four sites will have set musicians at all times," said the practising lawyer. "And there will be an open porch time during the afternoon at Westminster, so people who are interested should bring their instruments."

Musicians participating in Saturday's event include Keith Price, Twyla Twalis, Micah Erenberg, and The Acorn Poachers.

Cops saw Fontaine, let her go day before she went missing

Traffic stop. 15-year-old was a passenger in vehicle pulled over by police

New details emerged Thursday about the last hours in which Tina Fontaine — the 15-year-old girl whose killing has renewed calls for a national inquiry into missing and murdered aboriginal women — was seen alive.

Winnipeg police confirmed that two officers came across Fontaine when they pulled over a vehicle on Aug. 8 — the day before she disappeared and more than a week before her body was pulled from the Red River. Fontaine had already been reported missing more than a week earlier, but was not taken into custody at the traffic stop.

"If officers come across a person that's reported missing, I would expect them to take that person into their care," Supt. Danny Smyth said Thursday.

An internal investigation is underway to find out why she was let go, and the two officers have been put on administrative duties. It was not clear whether the officers knew Fontaine's identity at the time, or whether they were aware she had been reported missing.

The incident occurred nine days before Fontaine's body was found in a bag in the Red River.

Fontaine had spent much of her life with her great-aunt, Thelma Favel, on the Sagkeeng First Nation. She had a history of running away and went to Winnipeg about a month before her death to visit her biological mother.

Favel said social workers have told her that on the night of Aug. 8 — which would be a few hours after police came across Fontaine — the girl had passed out in an alley downtown and paramedics took her to a nearby hospital.

"They kept her there for about three or four hours until she sobered up a little bit and then (social workers) picked her up from the hospital."

That appears to have been the last time she was seen alive.

Supt. Danny Smyth speaks to media on Thursday. SHANE GIBSON/METRO

Child and Family Services has launched an internal investigation into the case as well, but Favel is not expecting anything will change.

"It's just another aboriginal who fell through the cracks, is the way I see it."

Favel said Thursday she has received a bill in the mail for Fontaine's ambulance ride to the hospital.

"I just received a $500 ambulance bill a couple of days ago." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fillion proposes city song, sand castle contest, 'winter Disneyland'

Mayoral candidate Michel Fillion said Thursday he wants to build on Winnipeg's reputation as a centre for culture and involve more youth in civic activities. His proposal included a number of creative ideas for new events and traditions.

COLIN FAST

winnipeg@metronews.ca

The Festival of Bands

A youth-organized music festival that would take place in movable theatres located around the city. "Young bands of a different style from one another would have a chance to play and sing for the public," said Fillion.

The Festival of Dance

Like The Festival of Bands, but with young dancers taking to platforms across Winnipeg. Young people would be responsible for "setup, sound, cleanup, refreshments."

Sand castle competition

A series of platforms along the boulevard on Broadway would host a massive sand castle competition, which could spread to the legislative grounds if it was popular enough.

Winter amusement park

Designed by the aboriginal community, this public-private "winter Disneyland" would be built on the site of a civic golf course and would include a "roller-coaster on ice going through tubes of neon."

City song

Fillion wants to commission a Winnipeg song that would "reflect the body and soul" of the city. He suggested a few romantic lyrics to start: "We met beside the boy with the boot." The song would be played in malls and on local radio.

Winnipeg handshake

Want to know if someone is a bona fide Winnipegger? Put them to the test with this handshake, which would represent "beauty and unification."

Sanders says Steeves has no pot of gold for road repair

Pick me, not him. Mayoral candidate picks apart another opponent's platform

winnipeg@metronews.ca

"I'm not for sale, and city hall is not for sale," declared mayoral candidate David Sanders Thursday as he delivered a scathing attack on opponent Gord Steeves.

Sanders blasted Steeves' plan to sell city golf courses, the Millennium Library parkade and the new police headquarters building to fund infrastructure repairs. He questioned the revenue estimates and suggested Steeves would have trouble getting the sales approved by council.

"There is no pot of gold at the end of this one-time rain-bow," Sanders said.

He also took issue with Steeves' plan to hire a team of policy experts to co-ordinate policy and strategy between the bureaucratic and political sides of city hall. A similar group, the EPC Secretariat, was eliminated by the city in 2008.

"This is a truly bizarre suggestion, formalizing the present disconnect between council and the senior administration," he said. "The new mayor and council must reassert public control over the senior administration of the city."

Unlike Steeves' promise to freeze property taxes, Sanders said he believes a small property tax increase would probably be needed next year, but refused to speculate on how much taxes go up until he consults with council and the administration.

Man facing murder charge in wife's death

Charges upgraded.

27-year-old Jenna Marsden died in hospital two days after an alleged beating

A Winnipeg man's aggravated assault charges have been upgraded to second-degree murder after his common-law wife died in hospital following a beating police say may have happened in front of the couple's two young children.

Jenna Marsden, 27, died Tuesday after being rushed to hospital in critical condition from an apartment suite in the 500 block of Burnell Street early Sunday morning.

Police said Marsden, her common-law husband and their two children went to the apartment building Saturday to see family, and decided to spend the night. According to police, early the next morning the couple got into an argument that turned violent. Police say the man physically assaulted the woman in the upper body, and caused "severe injury."

Police spokesperson Const. Eric Hofley said the couple's kids likely witnessed the fatal fight.

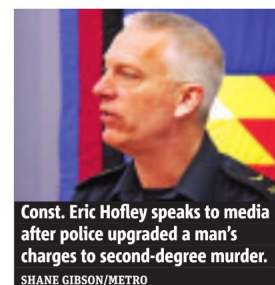

"It is a suite, so if they weren't right there witnessing it, they were nearby," he told reporters Thursday.

Hofley couldn't say what had led up to the fight, or whether alcohol was involved.

Erwin John Spence, 25, was originally charged with aggravated assault but those charges were upgraded to second-degree murder Wednesday after consultation with the Crown.

Lesson in violence. Big cat fight turns deadly at Assiniboine Park Zoo

One tiger is dead and another is behind bars after a fight at Assiniboine Park Zoo early Thursday.

The zoo said its oldest Amur tiger, Baikal, had wandered into an enclosure where two young male tigers, Samkha and Vasili, were being housed, and Vasili got into a confrontation with Baikal.

The older tiger was killed in the confrontation.

The zoo said a gate connecting the two enclosures had been mistakenly left unlocked, which allowed Baikal to get in.

"This is a tragic event and our staff are devastated," said Dr. Brian Joseph, director of zoological operations for the Assiniboine Park Zoo in a release.

"Baikal had lived at the Assiniboine Park Zoo for over five years and this is a heartbreaking loss for our staff and our visitors."

A high school was reportedly on tour at the zoo and witnessed the attack.

The zoo is conducting a full review of the incident and said visitors were not in danger. METRO

No serious injuries in Elmwood daycare fire

Eighteen children and five daycare workers were treated at hospital for smoke inhalation — but no one was seriously injured — after fire broke out in a Chalmers neighbourhood day nursery Wednesday.

Fire crews were called to the nursery in the Elmwood Winter Club at 75 Brazier St. just after 2 p.m. where a small fire started in the building's furnace room.

All of the 41 children and 10 adults in the building when the fire started safely self-evacuated after they noticed smoke coming from a furnace vent.

Firefighters were able to quickly extinguish the blaze and the daycare was open again Thursday after the building was vented and air quality verified.

Mayoral candidate Michel Fillion revealed his cultural vision for the city (see page 4) including an official handshake for Winnipeggers. Here are five suggestions from the minds at Metro.

BERNICE PONTANILLA
bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

1 The Meat Shoulder Bump

A good social just isn't a good social until someone ends up with meat on his or her shoulder. We suggest honouring this Winnipeg tradition with a meaty shoulder bump.

5 ways to shake hands in Winnipeg

5 The Winnipeg Handshake

What list of Winnipeg handshakes would be complete without mentioning The Winnipeg Handshake. It's not politically correct, but it is defined in the Urban Dictionary. It's when a broken beer bottle is used as a stabbing weapon.

2 The 'W'

Does this look like a "W" to you? We thought it did. What better way to let people know you're from Winnipeg than shaking hands in a way that looks a little like the first letter of our city's name.

3 The Virology Lab Safety Handshake

Winnipeg is home to Canada's National Microbiology Laboratory, and work at the lab to find an antibody for Ebola is making headlines around the world. With samples of deadly diseases behind the doors of the lab we think the Virology Lab Safety Handshake makes sense for Winnipeggers.

4 The Winter What's Up

It's almost time to pull out this classic Winnipeg greeting from the trunk of our cars again. When temperatures drop below -30 C there's no better way to say hello to your neighbour without risking frostbite than shaking hands with ice scrapers.

Iraq. ISIS militants torture, publicly execute female human rights lawyer: UN Militants with the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham tortured and then publicly killed a human rights lawyer in the Iraqi city of Mosul after their self-proclaimed religious court ruled that she had abandoned Islam, the UN mission in Iraq said Thursday.

Gunmen with the group's newly declared police force seized Samira Salih al-Nuaimi last week in a northeastern district of Mosul while she was home with her husband and three children, two people with direct knowledge of the incident told The Associated Press. Al-Nuaimi was taken to a secret location. After about five days, the family was called by the morgue to retrieve her corpse, which bore signs of torture, the two people said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

According to the United Nations Assistance Mission in Iraq, her arrest was allegedly connected to Facebook messages she posted that were critical of the militants' destruction of religious sites in Mosul. A statement by the UN on Thursday

Quoted

"They will kill anyone with a voice. It is terrifying."

Hanaa Edwar, Iraqi human rights activist, on ISIS militants added that al-Nuaimi was tried in a so-called Sharia court for apostasy, after which she was tortured for five days before the militants sentenced her to public execution. Her Facebook page appears to have been removed since her death.

Al-Nuaimi's death is the latest in a string of attacks by the militant group to silence female activists and politicians.

Hanaa Edwar, a prominent Iraqi human rights activist, said at least five female political activists have been killed in recent weeks by ISIS in Mosul, including al-Nuaimi, who Edwar said was also running for a seat on the provincial council.

The Gulf Center for Human Rights said Wednesday that al-Nuaimi had worked on detainee rights and poverty.

Alleged plot

Iraqi PM claims ISIS plans to bomb New York and Paris

Iraq's prime minister said Thursday that captured Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham militants have told Iraqi intelligence agents of an alleged plot to attack subways in the United States and Paris, but French and American officials said they had no such information.

A senior Obama administration official said no one in the U.S. government is aware of such a plot, adding that the claim was never brought up in meetings with Iraqi officials this week in New York.

A half-dozen French officials contacted said they knew of no plot.

Initially Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi was quoted as saying "yes" when asked if an attack was imminent. A review of his remarks established that he actually said, "I'm not sure."

He said that the attack threat had not been thwarted. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UAE's first female fighter pilot leads airstrikes on ISIS

Syria. United Arab Emirates ambassador calls Maj. Mariam al-Mansouri 'highly trained (and) combat ready'

The first female air force pilot in the United Arab Emirates led airstrikes against Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham militants in Syria earlier this week, the federation's ambassador to Washington said on Thursday as he pledged his country will do "whatever is necessary" to defeat the militant group.

Social media has been buzzing with rumours that F-16 pilot Maj. Mariam al-Mansouri played a part in attacks against the jihadist group, with many users taking delight in the rebuke it implied toward the militants' ultraconservative ideology.

Ambassador Yousef al-Otaiba's comments were the first public confirmation of her role.

"She is a fully qualified, highly trained, combat-ready pilot, and she led the mission," al-Otaiba said during an appearance on American cable channel MSNBC's Morning Joe.

The Emirates, a seven-state federation that includes the capital of Abu Dhabi and the Mideast commercial hub of Dubai, is one of five Arab countries that have joined the U.S.-led coalition carrying out the airstrikes in Syria.

Al-Mansouri was born in Abu Dhabi and graduated from the country's Khalifa bin Zayed Air College in 2007, according to a profile earlier this year in the government-owned newspaper The National.

Emirati leaders have taken steps to raise the status of women in the oil-rich country, which has modernized rapidly since its formation in 1971 and is now home to a cosmopolitan blend of foreign businesspeople, expatriate professionals and low-paid migrant workers who together far outnumber the local population.

Al-Otaiba linked al-Mansouri's role to the campaign to defeat ISIS.

"Do you want a model or a society that allows women to become ministers in government, female fighter pilots, business executives, artists? Or do you want a society where if a woman doesn't cover up in public she's beaten or she's lashed or she's raped? This is ultimately what this breaks down to," he said.

It is important that moderate Arab and Muslim nations take a stand against Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham militants, al-Otaiba said, describing the group as "a threat to our way of life." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Red Cross has made 28 recommendations to close "protection gaps" at immigrant detention centres in Canada after a confidential investigation.

Immigration detention centres full of problems, Red Cross finds

Investigation. Among problems cited by group is lack of support for detained children

A confidential Red Cross investigation found numerous shortcomings at Canadian facilities for immigrant detainees including triple-bunked cells, lack of support for detained children and inadequate mental-health care.

In addition, because there are no dedicated immigration cells in many parts of the country, newcomers are often held in provincial jails or police facilities alongside suspected gang members and violent offenders, says the Canadian Red Cross Society's inspection report.

Through an agreement with the Canada Border Services Agency, the independent humanitarian organization monitors the treatment and conditions of people detained in Canada under the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act.

The border agency holds people who are considered a flight risk or a danger to the public, and those whose identities cannot be confirmed.

The Red Cross makes 28 recommendations to help close various "protection gaps" noted by inspectors during 63 visits to facilities in British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia. In many cases the problems constituted a failure to comply with national or international standards.

The organization makes a confidential annual report to the border agency, which released the findings for 2012-13 under the Access to Information Act.

Agency spokesman Pierre Deveau said a number of steps have been taken to address the Red Cross's concerns. However, he did not provide details and refused to make anyone available to discuss the report.

McGill football star charged in domestic-violence incident

Luis-Andres Guimont-Mota. Running back accused of assault, uttering threats, but lawyer says he was the victim, not aggressor

The lawyer for a star McGill University football player charged in an alleged case of domestic violence says his client was the victim and not the aggressor.

Luis-Andres Guimont-Mota, 22, was formally arraigned in Montreal on Thursday on charges of assault and uttering threats against his estranged wife. He was immediately released on $300 bail and a host of conditions.

The third-year business management student and starting running back was arrested at a downtown apartment on Wednesday morning.

By late that evening, McGill said the player in question had been immediately suspended as per the university's varsity athletics guidelines.

"What's particular in this case is my client is the victim and not the aggressor, contrary to the cases in the United States," said defence lawyer Steve Hanafi, referring to a spate of domestic violence cases involving NFL players.

Hanafi said the university was too hasty in suspending Guimont-Mota from the football team and that he and his client would challenge the decision.

"I think they acted too fast just to protect their image and they don't know the facts," he told reporters.

Hanafi said Guimont-Mota is considering filing a Newborn health. Canada to help set up global fund

Prime Minister Stephen Harper has announced that Canada will contribute to a new international fund to prevent maternal and newborn deaths.

He and representatives of several national governments announced their plans to help set up a $4-billion US fund, to be run by the World Bank.

The Global Financing Facility will aim to get private-sector money as well to help reduce mortality rates, and to create better information-gathering systems to track progress.

Harper made the announcement at the United Nations, pledging $200 million in Canadian money, which will flow from the $3.5 billion he promised earlier this year.

Harper has declared the issue a main foreign-policy priority. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cybersecurity. Fraud the No. 1 online crime in 2012

Statistics Canada says police reported 9,084 incidents of cybercrime in 2012, more than half of which involved fraud.

The agency says very few online fraudsters were identified by police.

About 20 per cent of cybercrimes involved threats, with suspects identified in 55 per cent of the cases.

About 16 per cent of reported cybercrimes, or 1,441 incidents, involved sexual matters, including luring and child porn.

Police identified suspects in 31 per cent of cyber-related sexual violations and laid charges in 25 per cent of the incidents.

Donkey couple reunited amid brou-hee-haw

Poland. Citizens outraged after public love-making at zoo caused Napoleon, Antosia to be separated Napoleon is now back with his Antosia.

The two amorous donkeys who were separated because of an outcry over their love-making have been reunited at a zoo in Poland.

The couple, together for 10 years, got into trouble when mothers expressed outrage that children had to witness their mating. Local conservative official Lydia Dudziak took up their cause and persuaded the director of the zoo in Poznan to have the animals put in separate pens.

The zoo acknowledged making a mistake Thursday and said the donkeys are again in one pen after about a week apart. "It was never our intention for any animals to feel uncomfortable because of their natural behaviours," the zoo said in a statement.

The interruption of the long-standing romance turned into a national news item in Poland in the past days. Nearly 7,000 people signed a petition to have them reunited.

Experts weighed in, saying the separation could hurt their psychological well-being. Politicians were asked about it on the country's leading news programs.

In their decade together, Napoleon and Antosia have produced six offspring.

India releases first image of Mars taken by satellite

India's space agency released the first image of the crater-scarred and dry surface of Mars taken by the nation's first interplanetary spacecraft after it began orbiting the red planet.

The image released Thursday was taken when the Martian Orbiter Mission, or MOM, was about 7,300 kilometres from the planet's surface, according to the Indian Space and Research Organisation. The digital data took at least 12 minutes to reach Earth.

Space agency scientists released the image after bringing it to New Delhi to show Prime Minister Narendra Modi, who had spent Wednesday morning witnessing the satellite's last manoeuvre into orbit from the space agency's Mars command centre in the southern city of Bangalore.

The satellite will spend the next six months on an elliptical orbit — coming as close as 365 kilometres and swinging out to 80,000 kilometres at its farthest — as it collects

India was enthralled with the mission's success. Indian newspapers on Thursday ran front-page stories and two-page spreads detailing the mission. Museums opened special educational exhibitions. Indian celebrities and politicians commended the rare feat, which only the U.S., former Soviet Union and European Space Agency have succeeded at before.

NASA on Sunday had its own success in placing its Mars Atmosphere and Volatile Evolution mission, or MAVEN, in orbit around the planet. There are two other NASA satellites and one ESA craft also now orbiting Mars. Two NASA rovers are on the surface. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gambler saved from prison by a one-armed bandit

Police said Thursday that two officers carrying out routine checks at an arcade in Bochum, Germany, late last week discovered that a man playing a slot machine faced an arrest warrant.

He had been ordered to pay a 710-euro ($1,005) fine or go to prison for 71 days after resisting police during a previous incident.

Police said that as officers informed the man that he faced arrest, the slot machine started to flash and the 37-year-old won a jackpot of 1,000 euros. The man paid his fine on the spot — in cash. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just 'digging around' North Korean prison

Matthew Miller. U.S. man sentenced to six years of hard labour says he mostly does agricultural work

Matthew Miller THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An American man recently sentenced by North Korea to six years of hard labour says he is digging in fields eight hours a day and kept in isolation, but so far he is still in good health.

Under close guard and with only enough time to answer one question, 24-year-old Matthew Miller spoke briefly to The Associated Press at a Pyongyang hotel where he had been brought to call his family.

It was his first appearance since he was convicted Sept. 14 of entering the country illegally to commit espionage.

"Prison life is eight hours of work per day. Mostly it's been agriculture, like in the dirt, digging around," Miller said when asked what conditions were like in prison.

At Miller's 90-minute trial, North Korea's Supreme Court said Miller tore up his tourist visa upon arriving in Pyongyang on April 10 and declared his ambition to experience prison life so he could secretly investigate North Korea's human rights situation.

Miller is one of three Americans detained in North Korea. Jeffrey Fowle, arrested in May for leaving a Bible at a sailor's club, faces a future court date. Kenneth Bae was sentenced to 15 years of hard labour in 2013.

Robert King, the U.S. special envoy for North Korean human rights issues, said Pyongyang has not accepted American offers to send a high-level envoy to seek release of the three men. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cruise ship rescues 345 apparently fleeing Syria

Medical staff wait at Limassol in Cyprus for 345 people rescued by a cruise ship from a stranded boat Thursday. PETROS KARADJIAS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Distress call issued. 52 children among 'civilian refugees' stranded in small boat off the coast of Cyprus

A cruise ship rescued more than 300 people, apparently refugees who fled Syria, who were stranded Thursday aboard a small boat off Cyprus.

Cypriot Justice Minister Ionas Nicolaou told The Associated Press that Cyprus will host the people until authorities determine what will happen to them.

The Cypriot Defence Ministry said the 345 people, including 52 children, will be taken to a reception centre near the capital Nicosia where they will be given shelter and medical attention.

Salamis Cruise Lines managing director Kikis Vasiliou said that one of its cruise ships was instructed to pick up the people packed aboard the smaller vessel.

The Defence Ministry said the boat issued a distress call early Thursday amid bad weather and had "most likely" set sail from Syria loaded with "civilian refugees."

The Defence Ministry said the small boat was stranded about 50 nautical miles off Cyprus's southwestern coastal town of Paphos.

Meanwhile, the UN Human Rights Council has voted overwhelmingly to share its evidence of Syrian atrocities in hopes it will be forwarded to the world's war crimes tribunal.

By a vote of 32-5, with 10 abstentions, the 47-nation council adopted the resolution Thursday condemning lack of co-operation by President Bashar Assad's government with a UN commission investigating alleged rights violations since March 2011 in Syria.

The Scotiabank Toronto Waterfront Marathon takes over the majority of the downtown as 25,000 runners take part in October 2013. RICK MADONIK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Who will win the race? After a slow start, the running event biz has hit its stride — but now it's do-or-die time for organizers scrapping it out

melissa.dunne@metronews.ca

A sea of hipsters wait in T-shirts, headbands and sunglasses. Soon, their bright white shirts will look like the inside of a Skittles bag.

They look pleased. After all, most paid about $60 a pop to be popped with brightly coloured powder during a five-kilometre run earlier this month in downtown Vancouver.

Across town, another sea of runners in rainbow-bright clothes and shoes are readying for a timed 10-km road race.

It's clearly do-or-die time for running event organizers scrapping it out in the booming running events business.

It wasn't always this way.

Back in 1963 at Calgary's first marathon, a mere 19 men showed up, and only 12 finished. This year, more than 15,000 people took part. In 1975, 144 men and two women ran Ottawa's marathon. This May, 4,436 men and 2,599 women ran the marathon. And overall, 47,827 people participated in six events during Ottawa Race Weekend.

It's the same story coast-to-coast. While it took years for traditional road races to slowly build up their events, new events seem to have quickly sprinted to the head of the pack.

The Color Run, LLC held its first event in Arizona in 2012.

Charity

- Some for-profit runs, like the Canada Running Series, have a separate non-profit foundation. Others donate a small amount of money to charity directly.
- But the majority of money for charity via runs (whether a non-profit or not) is raised by individual runners.

In 2013, the for-profit company hosted roughly 170 events in more than 30 countries.

The Color Run (which has not added a "u" in deference to our spelling) held five events in Canada in 2013. This year, it grew to eight events, and plans to expand again next year.

About 60 per cent of participants in the untimed "fun runs" are first-time runners, according to a Color Run spokesperson.

The for-profit Tough Mudder LLC tends to attract more seasoned runners. Since it started in 2010, more than 100 Tough Mudders have been held around the globe. The 18- to 20-km events include obstacles such as: mud, freezing-cold ice, electricity and fire. A cross-section of CrossFitters, gym rats and runners in Canada have plunked down about $139.99 to $199.99 (plus fees and taxes) to take part in the gruelling event. In 2012, the business co-founded by a Harvard Business School grad brought in $70 million US in revenue, according to New York Magazine.

Alan Brookes, the director of the Canada Running Series Inc., is not worried about all the new competition.

"We're passionate believers in doing one thing well," says Brookes from Vancouver, where he was hosting the Vancouver Eastside 10K. "We are sticking to the traditional, complete road race and leaving the mud and colour to others."

The for-profit Canada Running Series holds a total of eight races in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver every year. Its marquee event, the Scotiabank Toronto Waterfront Marathon (STWM), has hit its stride — celebrating 25 years this year and on pace to hit record numbers of participants.

The STWM began as the Coors Light Toronto Half-Marathon — part of a "six-pack" of races in a nod to the sponsor.

In 1990, about 1,500 people took part. In the last five years the number of participants at the STWM (which now includes a 5-km run, half-marathon and full marathon) has risen almost 400 per cent, with about 25,000 expected on Oct. 19.

Lately, it's condo-dwelling millennials of both genders that are pushing the phenomenal growth, Brookes says.

And companies are jockeying for a prominent spot at these events so they can market their product or brand to the swelling crowds of young, fit and well-heeled runners. Brands have such a strong presence that some runs look like NASCAR races.

Being a part of these feel-good events is worth a lot to companies.

In 2008, Richard Branson's group paid about $30 million in a five-year deal to sponsor London's not-for-profit marathon. It's now called the Virgin Money London Marathon.

Eye-popping deals like that seem to have encouraged a slew of newbies to give putting on an event a shot. Many quickly hit a wall.

Earlier this month, Runner's World Magazine reported some theme and obstacle events have failed lately, with insiders pointing to "organizer's inexperience and unanticipated costs."

Heather Wall has experienced what she says was a poorly executed event firsthand.

The über-fit Ottawa mom runs in about a dozen events per year, including the Canada Army Run in Ottawa last weekend. Two years ago she tried a local obstacle endurance event.

"It was not well organized," says Wall. "It left a bad taste in my mouth."

Among other things, she says it was not clear the event was solely a for-profit venture and she worried about the safety of runners as she believes there was not sufficient medical help on site.

"I'm glad I did it, but I would never do it again," says Wall.

A safe event is something runners like Wall keep top-of-mind.

In 2012, a man drowned at a Tough Mudder in West Virginia. The death was ruled accidental. The man's family have since filed a lawsuit.

In the mad dash to cash in, some of these events will trip up and drop out along the way. In the long run, runners like Wall will determine which events get a second wind.

Run, Metro, Run!

The Running Room

Free clinics mean big money

Every Sunday morning the true believers gather to worship in the running temples John Stanton built.

The former two-pack-a-day smoker started the Running Room in 1984. The first store was literally a room in a house in Edmonton.

Thirty years later, there are about 1,500 staffers and 128 stores in North America.

Since the start, Stanton has preached about inclusiveness and community.

The stores generally run free clinics every Wednesday night and Sunday morning that anyone can attend. Plus, the stores offer several training clinics for $69.99 in Canada, which are sponsored by running shoe companies, such as New Balance and Saucony.

"The clinics are a little bit self-serving," Stanton freely admits in a phone interview from Edmonton. It's a mutually beneficial relationship, he says. Customers get fit and meet like-minded people and the store builds a strong relationship with customers and sells them a new pair of running shoes every now and then.

Competitors are starting to see the light. Vancouver's Lululemon Athletica Inc. and MEC (formerly Mountain Equipment Co-op) are among the growing number of retailers now offering free running groups and sponsoring running events, too.

Color Me Rad saw well over a thousand people run the five-kilometre race. The running boom has been a boon to gadget makers. Scan the photo with your Metro News app to see a gallery of the latest products making the rounds among runners. STEFANIA SECCIA/FOR METRO IN VANCOUVER FILE

Is Bash bug worse than Heartbleed?

Uh-oh. Experts are divided over whether the latest security flaw will cause more chaos than the Heartbleed bug

New warnings are emerging of a security flaw known as the "Bash" bug, which cyber experts say may pose a serious threat to devices using Unix-based operating systems such as Linux and Mac OS X.

Beyond computers, devices ranging from home Internet routers to systems used to run factory floors and power plants to medical equipment could be affected.

The Department of Homeland Security's Computer Emergency Readiness Team in the U.S. issued a warning about the vulnerability this week. Experts are divided over whether the bug could pose a bigger threat than the Heartbleed computer security flaw discovered earlier this year.

Security company Rapid7 said that while the vulnerability "looks pretty awful at first glance," hackers will not be able to exploit most systems running the affected Bash software. The Heartbleed bug exploited a key piece of security technology used by hundreds of thousands of websites. For more than two years before it was discovered, the flaw exposed passwords and other sensitive data to hackers who could steal that information.

The reason the Bash bug could be worse than Heartbleed is because it gives the attacker a bigger advantage than Heartbleed did, said Tod Beardsley, engineering manager at Rapid7. With Heartbleed, attackers could get an information leak. With the Bash bug, they can get "remote code execution," a way to take control of the affected device to install programs or run commands, he said. The bug is rated a maximum 10 out of 10 for its impact and ease of exploitability by the Common Vulnerability Scoring System, an industry standard for assessing how bad security flaws are.

Cellphone charging

There's solar power in them thar gold atoms

Tired of your cellphone's low-battery light blinking as you stand helpless on a downtown corner?

Giovanni Fanchini says he has the fix.

Fanchini and other Western University scientists in London, Ont., have turned 144 atoms of gold into a molecule that's proven to increase solar cell performance by more than 10 per cent.

And, Fanchini says, it could come to valuable use in the form of solar-powered phones in as few as five years.

"Every time you recharge your cellphone, you have to plug it in," says Fanchini, an assistant professor in physics and astronomy. "What if you could charge mobile devices like phones, tablets or laptops on the go?"

"Not only would it be convenient, but the potential energy savings would be significant."

Service providers. Forcing pick-and-pay TV futile, is coming anyway: Report

Forcing TV service providers to offer their customers television channels on a pick-and-pay basis would be a waste of time, a new study says.

The C.D. Howe Institute report released Thursday says ever-changing technology will soon put viewers squarely in the driver's seat, allowing them to choose everything they watch one program at a time.

And it suggests it would be better for regulators to determine whether broadcasters should continue to be required to fund the production of Canadian content.

The study also opposes the idea of forcing new video-distribution services, such as Netflix, to pay into funds that subsidize such content.

America. Drones to be used for moviemaking get thumbs-up from the FAA

The U.S. government granted six movie and television production companies permission to use drones for filming, an important step toward greater use of the technology by commercial operators, Transportation Secretary Anthony Foxx announced Thursday.

Dozens of other industries are lined up to follow Hollywood's lead. Until now, the Federal Aviation Administration, which is part of the Transportation Department, had banned commercial drone operations with the exception of a lone oil company in Alaska.

The FAA permits come with limitations, including that the unmanned aircraft be used only in a restricted area and that they be flown under 400 feet in altitude. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BCAA's - 3 Little aminos that provide big results

Where protein struggles, BCAAs fill in the gaps. While it is true that protein is the true recovery juggernaut, the effects of taking individual amino acids have been extensively researched and have proven to be a critical element to reaching fitness goals.

BCAAs, named for their structure, are essential amino acids (EAA) that the body is unable to produce and therefore must be ingested in order to have beneficial results. BCAAs compose nearly 1/3 of muscle tissue which has solidified them as a staple supplement for people looking to gain muscle, enhance body composition or simply decrease the time it takes to recover from a workout. Whether you take them throughout the day, post workout or during exercise, the true key to an effective amino supplement sits with their individual components: Leucine, Isoleucine and Valine.

Leucine

- The king of the aminos
- Main component of increased protein synthesis
- Insulin spiking compound to drive nutrients into cells and stimulate growth
- Hunger suppressant

Isoleucine

- Fat burning activation

Valine

- Endurance enhancement
- Energy spike
- Serotonin suppressant

The greatest results and the real trick is to have all three working together in proper dosage in order to see the desired benefits. Like any good team, they are only strong when working together. 5grams of a 2:1:1 (Leucine:Isoleucine:Valine) ratio is all you need to see beneficial results on metabolism, performance, hormone secretion, fat loss and molecular signaling of protein synthesis.

Here at Muscles by Meyers, we carry a wide selection of BCAAs. Come in today, and our knowledgeable staff can assist you in finding the BCAA that's right for you! Visit us at 483 William Ave or at www.musclesbymeysers.com.

WOMEN'S RIGHTS ARE ELEMENTARY: WATSON

1 Timmies Pop-up Store. In a bid to show how fun it is to work at their stores (and demonstrate their community spirit), Tim Hortons did a one-day, pop-up store at a home in a Calgary community, giving out free double-doubles and doughnuts to residents. As Buzzfeed Canada noted, "eh-plus stunt." Indeed.

2 MANTOWN. Canadian comedians Bob Banks, Adam Cawley, Jason DeRosse and Rob Norman are part of MANTOWN, one of the best alpha-male improv troupes anywhere. They're featured in Toronto's Comedy Festival this week, and are at the Montreal Improv Festival early October. They're a laugh a second. Follow them @MANTOWNComedy.

4 Assiniboine Park Zoo. This Winnipeg zoo had to temporarily close its underwater polar bear viewing tunnel after the bears chewed the silicone sealant around the tunnel's glass. "It just shows you when you're working with live animals, anything can happen at any time," said a zoo spokesperson. Exactly.

5 Emma Watson. The actress and UN Women Goodwill Ambassador gave a game-changing speech on feminism and gender at the UN Headquarters in N.Y.C. to launch the "HeForShe" campaign, which aims to galvanize one billion men and boys as advocates for ending the inequalities that women and girls face around the world. Best thing ever.

6 Teleporter Travel. Marriott Hotels has created a virtual travel experience — a mobile travel booth launched in N.Y.C. with live-action, 4D video and sensory elements to deliver the feeling of actually being in Hawaii and London. Once they figure out every other getaway destination in the world, we'll no longer have to travel. Yes, the future of travel is no travel.

7 CBC's ComedyCoup. Starting Oct. 2, over 10 weeks, comedy creators from across Canada will create hundreds of hilarious videos to submit to the ComedyCoup competition. They advance by getting social media support and feedback from their fans. The winner gets a $500,000 half-hour TV special on CBC. And we get lots of laughs.

8 Crossing Guards. They're unsung heroes but the spotlight is now shining on them through a Canada's Favourite Crossing Guard challenge. You can nominate a school crossing guard in your community at ParachuteCanada.org from now until Nov. 24 and follow the hashtag #FavCrossingGuard for updates on the contest.

Great apes enjoy harp music at Minnesota zoo every month

Harpist Terri Tacheny long enjoyed taking her young daughters to Como Zoo in St. Paul, Minn., except for the Primate House, where she thought the gorillas, orangutans and monkeys seemed a little lethargic.

Her solution: A little music.

Now Tacheny, a zoo volunteer, plays once a month for an appreciative audience that ambles down to the barrier as soon as Tacheny begins setting up her beautifully carved wooden harp. She's been doing it for nearly a decade.

As the shimmering sounds of Tacheny's harp drift through the leafy zoo, a male gorilla stares through the fence at the musician, then chews contentedly on vegetation. Families stop to snap pictures.

Quoted

"I don't speak gorilla, but there's a gorilla purr that occurs when I begin to play. And that's their happy sound."

Harpist Terri Tacheny

A therapeutic harpist, Tacheny plays for hospital patients to help them deal with pain and anxiety.

She thought if the soothing sounds helped to calm humans, it would work for the primates too.

Tami Murphy, a zookeeper at Como, said Tacheny has played for all the animals at the zoo. Some animals appear ambivalent, Murphy said, but the harp music "seems to be a really calming thing for the apes to listen."

Tacheny says she's never gotten a negative review from her ape audience. "I've never had anything thrown at me," she said.

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

metro AR Denzel Washington returns to the action genre with The Equalizer. Scan this photo using the Metro News app to see the movie's fast-paced trailer. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Washington plays a home improvement store worker by day, righter of wrongs by night. He's a former black ops commando trying to leave his violent ways in the past but just when he thought that part of his life was over, the Russian mob leans on him because he tried to protect a young woman (Chloë Grace Moretz) from her violent pimp. When he singlehandedly wipes out the East Coast wing of the Russian mob, Teddy (Marton Csokas) — an enforcer from Moscow — arrives to put an end to McCall's one-man search for justice.

- Richard: ●●●●
- Mark: ●●●●

The Equalizer. Denzel Washington's acting chops carry this thriller about a man with a regular life who is pretty talented in using tools as weapons of mass destruction

Richard: Mark, The Equalizer is more elegant than Liam Neeson's recent action movies but less viscerally satisfying.

All the elements of Neeson's Eurotrash thrillers are in place — tattooed bad guys and the “seasoned” hero with a “special set of skills” — but the pace is much slower. The point of the story is that McCall equalizes situations, using his talents to help the downtrodden, but it takes about 30 minutes before any settling of scores happens.

We meet McCall, learn about his orderly life but we don't learn anything about his past. He's Denzel and ergo, a badass, but the first half-hour of this movie could have snapped things up a bit by illuminating his past.

Mark: Richard, withholding information must be what passes for suspense in this thriller.

But I can accept a slow burn off the top if the rest of the movie ignites.

But the plot and tone of the movie is standard stuff, as you say. What lifts the rote material into the stratosphere is Denzel, who is such a good actor we forget we're watching an expensive Steven Seagal flick.

RC: It is a slow burn that does build some tension, and by the time McCall unleashes hell on the Russian mobsters, it comes as a bit of a catharsis. Now the movie is rolling!

Except that it isn't.

It takes ages for McCall to open another can of whoop-ass. Instead director Antoine Fuqua has elected to gradually build up to a wild showdown in a massive hardware store.

Who knew those places were so dangerous?

The climax is tense and inventive — apparently there is no home improvement device that cannot be turned into a WMD — but it is a more standard blockbuster-movie ending than you might expect from a movie so stingy with the action in the first hour.

MB: Homeowners ... killing homeowners, as the jingle sorta goes.

I liked the set piece at the end; it was very well directed, and I have no quibble with the technical virtuosity of the movie.

Denzel's taciturn hero is mysterious and engaging. But when I thought about it, all of the hero's efforts to eliminate the Russian mob in Boston would only result in the ascendancy of the Irish mob. And what's Bill Pullman doing in the movie with three lines?

Time to fire his agent?

RC: Pullman did have the nicer house, though, so I guess that counts for something.

Overall it's a good movie and Denzel is, as always, charismatic and interesting, but as he says, paraphrasing Hemingway, if “the old man gotta be the old man,” then The Equalizer gotta be more of an action movie to be completely satisfying.

MB: I might say the violence was often gratuitous, but there's not much of a movie without it.

Examining Xavier Dolan's Oedipal world

Mommy. Director talks about his fascination with mothers and sons and making films about them

ANNE BRODIE
scene@metronews.ca

"I have no culture. I'm ignorant. I have a high school diploma and I've seen eight films."

Quite the admission from Quebec's boy wonder Xavier Dolan who has accrued 36 awards with just five major features since 2009. I Killed My Mother, Heartbeats, Laurence Anyways, Tom at the Farm and his latest Mommy catapulted him onto the world stage at Cannes, four winning major prizes. Dolan is hands-on in all elements of his films and has a successful acting and voice-over career. Dolan says he has no culture, but it's clear he creates it. And he's just 25.

Mommy finds us in familiar Dolan mother/son territory. The widowed Diane (Anne Dor-val) and her violent, mentally ill teenaged son Steve (Antoine-Olivier Pilon) find it hard to function together or integrate into society. They are perpetual youngsters in a love-hate relationship that recalls his 2009 film I Killed My Mother. "I was ready to go back to mother and sons and I realized I'd never left them," says Dolan. "They'd always been in my movies somehow, sometimes in the background and sometimes in the spotlight. I Killed My Mother was about schemes compared to Mommy, which is really about an existential crisis between two people who love each other more than the world. They love each other so much they cannot live together."

Dolan picked the word Mommy from all the terms for mother as it describes their refusal to grow up. "Mommy is what children call their moms. They don't say ma, or mom or mother except if you're on the Titanic. They say mommy when they're really small. Both Die and Steve are two children; they're just babies. Die is an eternal teenager and Steve just will never be a grown-up; he's a little baby."

Mommy is set in a "fictionalized Canada" in which a parent may deposit an incorrigible child in an institution indefinitely. "The thing about mental illness is that it is unpredictable. Steve doesn't think, 'Well, I'm going to go home and burn the house down.' He's a good kid, but he's a ticking bomb. He does not control his outbursts. It's important for me to portray how unpredictable relationships are when mental illness is in the household."

Dolan stars in the upcoming psychological drama The Elephant Song in which he's confined to a psychiatric hospital. And he's reportedly starring opposite Taylor Lautner in Gus Van Sant's untitled project based on a New Yorker Magazine article.

Not so long ago, Dolan complained of sitting around waiting for the phone to ring and petting his cat. "It sure has changed. First I'm allergic to cats, I stopped doing laundry, I just buy new briefs, I travel so much I don't have time to wash them."

Mommy, which opens in select theatres next Friday, has been submitted in the best foreign language film category at the Academy Awards. TORSTAR

Genesis Rodriguez is a pretty big nerd

Tusk. Actress says she has a passion for building robots and welding things

NED
Metro World News in Hollywood

Geeks of the world, you're about to fall in love with Genesis Rodriguez. There's no point in resisting. The actress, appearing in Kevin Smith's totally insane Tusk, used to be part of an all-girl BattleBots team. Her words, not ours.

"We were an all-girls robotics team. We looked like we were kick-ass, cool-ass girls who had ribbons in their hair but were like, 'We're going to kick your ass!'" Rodriguez tells Metro. "We did competitions, like national competitions. We went to the Kennedy Space Center, we went to a convention in Oklahoma. I was involved with the pneumatics of the robot. I wasn't so much into getting the precise degree and cuts of angles and things

— I was a welder."

Yes, welding. Rodriguez thinks women have the edge when it comes to that particular trade. "I think girls make better welders than men because we take time with our tacks and our welds, we're detailed and we make it look pretty," she says with a laugh. "It's fun. Just the smell of it is just ... I love the oil. The light, it's hypnotizing. You could be there all day just looking at it. It's kind of cool. But yeah, building robots was super-awesome."

Rodriguez acknowledges that when people first look at her, they might not immediately think "welding" and "robots," but that's their loss. "It's not something that you'd expect, but it was just a fun time. You're actually thinking something in your head and then executing it and actually seeing it done. I think it's just a really cool school program that should be promoted more. And you're having fun with your friends and working on a crocodile robot. How cool is that?"

So what was it her kick-ass team created? "Basically, it was really a tough robot, a crocodile," she explains. "It was built at an angle, so it would come under you and just chomp you down into pieces and break you down. So even if you're a bigger robot in size, it could just scoop you from under — trip it and kill it."

And if robots aren't enough for you, she's also an avid Shark Week aficionado, something that helped her build more appreciation for the massive beast at the centre of Tusk, the walrus. "I was watching Shark Week this last time, and I realized that sharks do not mess with walruses. They don't," she says.

Spike Lee. Filmmaker picks up Pioneer award at Montreal black film fest

Spike Lee has been described as one of the angriest filmmakers in the United States, but he jokingly suggested Wednesday he was worried about a bit of ire coming his way during a news conference in Montreal.

"We're not going to talk about the Rangers beating the Habs last year, are we?" said the diehard sports fan, referring to the Montreal Canadiens' elimination from last season's Stanley Cup playoffs at the hands of his hometown New York team.

"We're not bringing that up?"

Lee didn't have to worry. He appeared at the Montreal International Black Film Festival where he was to be presented with the event's first Pioneer award by P.K. Subban, the Habs co-captain.

"He's a great player," Lee said before the award ceremony, adding he watched Subban play in New York last season and waved at him during the pre-game skate.

"I've noticed a lot more players of colour in the National Hockey League. The Rangers need to get one."

Spike Lee cracked jokes about the New York Rangers beating the Montreal Canadiens during his visit to Montreal Wednesday. THE CANADIAN PRESS

The ceremony was to precede the Canadian premiere of Lee's new film Da Sweet Blood of Jesus, a romantic horror comedy.

The event coincides with the 25th anniversary of Lee's landmark film Do the Right Thing, about racial tensions in Brooklyn.

Lee acknowledged a lot has changed in the last 25 years.

"Twenty-five years ago, I would have never thought there would be an African-American president," he said.

"That's something that happened, so there have been many great developments. But there are more African-Americans who are in poverty now than there were back 25 years ago and police are still killing black people."

He also pointed out that while there are more black stars, "black people are not taking over Hollywood."

Lee, who is credited with helping revolutionize modern black cinema, said there is still a need for more diversity — including more women, Asians, and Hispanics — on TV and behind the scenes in TV and movies.

Lucky Luciano looks for a new dream

Boardwalk Empire. Vincent Piazza reflects on acclaimed series as it airs its final season

Vincent Piazza is pondering his next move. His critically acclaimed series, Boardwalk Empire, created by Terence Winter and executive produced by Martin Scorsese, is in its fifth and final season on HBO Canada (Sundays, 9 p.m. EDT.)

Piazza, 38, plays Charles "Lucky" Luciano, a leading Mafia figure in the United States. "It's like my dream ended here. Now I need to re-dream something else," he said.

One possibility is writing. "I love writing. I love telling stories, and I'm going to try and give a crack at that for a bit." In a recent interview, Piazza shared his thoughts on co-star Steve Buscemi and what he kept from the set.

Where were you when you got the role?

I was in a little room in my (New York) apartment on 17th Street. I remember getting the call and I was just, 'Wow.' It was a wow moment, and then I had all this energy and excitement to begin, and I was like, 'All right, when does it start?' 'Like in six months.' And I was like, 'Oh.'

And that's when I became a bookworm and was watching every documentary, reading every biography, just went to work in trying to learn more about the time.

What did you learn from Steve Buscemi?

Steve has been so gracious to me and all the actors that I get to see him interact with, and he's such a great leader.

As an example, it was the first episode that we were shooting of the entire show, and I'm a huge Steve Buscemi fan, but I'm also getting the feel of it. I don't know the hours, I don't know a TV schedule that well.

So, I was just getting to know everyone and spending time with the actors and the crew, and I look over and I see Steve just in his chair, his eyes closed, just sitting there. I go, 'Oh, interesting. He wants time to himself. OK, anyway, carrying on ...'

But by the 12th hour, 13th hour, 16th hour of the day,

"I kept my cigarette lighter ... It took me a year to not burn myself whenever I clicked it."

Vincent Piazza, Boardwalk Empire, on the souvenir he kept from the series

I'm just fighting to ... keep my energy up. I'm watching him just come out of his chair like, 'All right, we're ready to go.'

And I was like, 'Wow.' Those little things, you know, you pick up along the way. Just conserve your energy, stay focused.

Yeah, there was a lot of great stuff that I learned by watching him, as well as talking with him.

Did you keep anything from the set?

I kept my cigarette lighter because it was with me from the pilot. It took me about a year to not burn myself whenever I clicked it, because it's an old lighter. You've got to flick it and try and look cool like, 'I've used this lighter all my life, since I was four when I started smoking.'

So we have this relationship, the lighter and I, and it's been with me the whole way, always in my pocket or in the scene, so, yeah, it's my little buddy.

Boardwalk is so visually spectacular. Could you pick up on that during filming?

There was actually a moment last season when I was sitting back in the chair ... and I'm just staring at the monitor, and I looked and was like, 'We're in a moving oil painting.' It is just so rich in colour and texture. It was really special.

Brooklyn Nine-Nine.

Co-creator promises twists for cop comedy's second season

It looks like Brooklyn Nine-Nine is going to be one of the busiest police precincts on TV when it returns for its second season on Sunday.

"There's some new twists," promised co-creator Mike Shur, who also helped bring Parks and Recreation and the American version of The Office to TV.

Capt. Ray Holt (Andre Braugher) goes toe to toe with a new rival and there will be "exciting and hopefully satisfying" resolutions to the romantic cliffhangers and star detective Jake Peralta's undercover adventure.

"There's a lot of new things that are introduced in the first two episodes," Shur said of the show, which is broadcast on CityTV and Fox.

Case-cracking mingles with wisecracking in the comedy, which won Golden Globes in its first season as best TV comedy and for star Andy Samberg as best actor in a TV series, musical or comedy. It also won an Emmy for outstanding stunt co-ordination.

Brooklyn Nine-Nine is one of only a handful of police-themed comedies since Car 54, Where Are You? in the 1960s. Barney Miller in the 1970s, Police Squad in the 1980s and Reno 911 (2003-2009) were others.

Shur said he and co-creator Dan Goor, both fans of Barney Miller, saw potential in that scarcity.

"There are certain reasons you would imagine people would be scared off from it because police work is often not hilarious but we felt with the right cast and with the right group of people doing it we can make a funny show," Shur said.

Melissa Fumero, who plays Det. Amy Santiago, agreed.

"I actually thought this is great because there's so many procedurals and cop shows on television, there should be a funny one," she said. "There's so much opportunity there to even poke fun at all those procedurals a little bit."

Shur noted real cops have called Barney Miller one of the most realistic fictional depictions of police work ever broadcast. Brooklyn Nine-Nine also consults actual police to ensure it's getting details right.

Adds executive producer David Miner: "It's important at some level, even though it's a comedy show, to be tethered to reality just a little bit."

Samberg said that's one of the reasons the show has clicked.

"It very effortlessly feels true to life," said Samberg, who sat down with the rest of the cast for an interview prior to a tribute to the show at the Just for Laughs festival in July. "It felt very current to me, in a nice way. That's actually a really hard thing to pull off."

The show's cornerstone is the relationship between savvy yet irreverent Peralta and the stern Holt.

Samberg described the dynamic as "him, sort of a stoic rock and me a yipping dog jumping in circles around him and poking and prodding him."

Samberg said unleashing Peralta's craziness is something that comes naturally to him.

"I have two older sisters so I'm basically groomed in trying to annoy someone until they pay attention to me. It's fun."

Braugher, who was nominated for a supporting actor Emmy this year but didn't win, said the show is "one of the best challenges I've had in quite a while."

"I think it's terrific. They're all very accomplished comedians and I'm really learning the art of comedy from watching them."

Poking fun

Braugher, who was previously known to viewers as intellectual crimesolver Frank Pembleton on the drama Homicide: Life on the Street, praised the "mature" quality of the humour, particularly in the handling of his gay character.

"One of the other great things about this comedy is that no one's the butt of the joke and that to me is another testament to the maturity of our creators."

One character who would be an easy target is Det. Charles Boyle, played by Joe Lo Truglio, whose cop-acting credentials include Reno 911 and Law & Order.

The quirky Boyle spent most of the first season looking for love, mainly pursuing the fierce Det. Rosa Diaz before hooking up with foodie Vivian Ludley and ending up in bed with Holt's assistant, Gina Linetti.

Making the cops good at their jobs is key to the comedy, he says.

"What makes them funny is their own personality flaws. It's nice in the case of Boyle to have a character that is weird but also good at his job. If you're strange and off-centred, that isn't equal to incompetence. I think that's a positive message."

What's sauce for the boss is epic eating

Epic Meal Empire. YouTube stars serve up gut-busting fare on new TV series

The four guys behind Epic Meal Empire have devoured cheeseburger-stuffed lasagna, pizza cupcakes and Tex-Mex sushi. So what's the grossest thing they've ever eaten?

"Dried apricots and dried papayas," says founder Harley Morestein with disgust.

The Montreal-based kitchen crew genuinely loves calorie-laden comfort food. And after racking up 600 million YouTube views for their Epic Meal Time videos, they're bringing their passion for gut-busting concoctions to the small screen.

In Epic Meal Empire, airing Mondays on FYI, the gang moves to Los Angeles and cooks up artery-clogging fare for "extreme-food clients" — i.e. anyone with an excuse to consume meals that should probably only be eaten once in a lifetime.

The crew, led by "Sauce Boss" Morestein and his friends Josh Elkin, Ameer Atari and Dave Heuff, sees moving from YouTube to TV as a natural progression.

"I don't mind saying that I like Epic Meal Empire better than Epic Meal Time," declared Morestein, 29, in an interview.

Back in 2010, he was a substitute high school teacher in his hometown of Montreal when he began experimenting in video production. Epic Meal Time was born when he and his friends created an elaborate "cheat meal" — ironically, amid efforts to promote health and fitness.

"After the first episode, I substituted the following week. The show had gotten a lot of traction," he recalled. "The kids were like, 'Oh sir, I saw you drinking on the Internet!' ... I kind of lost the children that day."

Two weeks later, the number of online views were so staggering that Morestein quit his teaching job. After hundreds of episodes, two cookbooks and six million

YouTube subscribers, the crew turned their attention to TV.

Morestein said several networks were interested, but in the end they chose "contemporary lifestyle" channel FYI, a recent rebrand of Shaw Media's Twist and A&E's Biography.

"They let us do what we want, which is the best part of being on FYI," he said. "They were the ones that really put the trust in us. They picked up 16 episodes right off the bat. That was enough for us to want to commit to that network."

"Now, the show is exactly what we want. It's something we're proud of. It's hilarious. I think it's an awesome show."

In the first episode, a second-grade teacher invites the guys to make her students a "fantasy meal," a break from eating boring old healthy food. They build a "Taterbot," a giant robot made of Tater Tots, licorice and grilled cheese.

Other wild concoctions in the show: A Cinnabon battleship with a cream cheese frosting churro cannon, an eight-foot chicken (made of chicken tenders and 100 eggs) on roller skates and an edible car they also claim is "driveable."

A bigger budget allows the guys to be more imaginative with their meals, but network television has its drawbacks. The Jack Daniel's-guzzling foursome can't drink on camera, which they flout in the premiere by taking a shot off screen. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mary-Kate swaps Cartier rock for band of gold, leading to marry chase

Guys, we really dropped the ball on this one. Everyone's been so focused on George Clooney getting married that we may have missed Mary-Kate Olsen's wedding altogether. The 28-year-old actress, designer and Wonder Twin was spotted this week in the Hamptons with her fiancé, 45-year-old French banker Olivier Sarkozy, both of them sporting what look like gold wedding bands — and the massive Cartier diamond ring Olsen used to wear was nowhere in sight. Which begs the question: Is there such a thing as a hobo chic wedding dress? And what self-respecting billionaire hangs out in the Hamptons after Labour Day?

Miles Teller delivers two wildly Divergent tales

Looks like Miles Teller is engaging in a little bit of he said ... he also said. The Spectacular Now star told W magazine that he felt "dead inside" while filming Divergent, which didn't sit very well with fans of the franchise. "I didn't have an interesting part, and I'd taken the film for business reasons," he told the magazine. And you know who else wasn't very happy with the stuff Miles Teller said? Miles Teller. After his rep did some damage control, Teller took to Twitter

Someone was feeding Lohan lines? Say it ain't so

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Depending on who you ask, Lindsay Lohan either had a great first night or a terrible first night during her London stage debut. Previews started this week for David Mamet's Speed-the-Plow, and the first review, from the Daily Beast, is not terribly kind. "On the first night of previews, a work-in-progress feel is to be expected," Nico Hines writes. "But halfway through the second act of Speed-the-Plow, the audience was openly laughing at Lohan's struggle to grasp Mamet's sharp, trademark dialogue." Some audience members had fun with the gaffes, like Rafay Agha, who tweeted, "Major kudos to the woman who was feeding Lindsay Lohan her lines from offstage." But a tweet from one of her fans tells a different story. "According to all attendees of (Speed-the-Plow), Lindsay Lohan owned her part. As if doubt were plausible," writes Peyton Pittman. I just don't know who to believe anymore.

David Bowie

What's a little fur play between friends like Bowie and Jagger?

Turns out the compulsion to make everything fur-lined in the 1970s was more about function than form — at least at David Bowie's place. According to a new biography by Wendy Leigh, Bowie and his then-wife, Angela, had a four-foot-deep, fur-lined play area in their London flat affectionately dubbed "the pit" that was used for the some spectacular feats of sexual strength. The Bowies "used to have the most amazing orgies at Oakley Street. Everybody f—ing everybody in the pit. Mick Jagger used to come there and be involved with sexual things," Leigh writes. To be fair, though, I feel like Jagger could get business cards printed up that list his profession as "involved with sexual things."

The smell of baked apples — plus cinnamon and brown sugar — is simply amazing.

Want to fill your house with that delicious goodness?

Bake up a batch of my Apple Crisp Muffins, which deliver all the flavours of a classic crisp in a breakfast-friendly muffin.

Topping

1. In a bowl, combine the rolled oats, brown sugar, flour and melted butter. Set aside.

2. In a skillet, sauté the apples in the butter for about 5 minutes. Allow to cool.

Muffins

1. Preheat the oven to 350 F (180 C). Line a 12-well muffin pan with paper liners.

2. In another bowl, combine the flour, baking powder and cinnamon. Set aside.

3. In another bowl, cream butter and sugar with mixer until light and fluffy. Add eggs and vanilla. Beat until smooth.

4. With a wooden spoon, stir dry ingredients into butter and sugar mixture alternately with the milk. Add the diced apples. Spoon the batter into the wells.

5. Place 3 pieces of uncooked apples on each muffin and top with the oatmeal mixture. Press lightly with your fingers.

6. Bake in the middle of the oven for about 20 to 25 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in the centre of a muffin comes out clean. FOLLOW RICARDO ON SOCIAL MEDIA AND ON RICARDOCUISINE.COM OR SUBSCRIBE TO HIS MAGAZINE'S UP-COMING ENGLISH EDITION, WHICH LAUNCHED THIS SEPTEMBER!

Myths of French grapes

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy liquidassets@eastlink.ca

French wines have an image problem.

No matter how closely associated the country is with fermented grape juice, it struggles to shake the myth that it only makes wine for rich experts and not the average oenophile.

While its wines can get pricey, those big guns make up a paltry percentage of its total output.

You can easily find wine from France for the same price as your fave bottle from Australia or Italy.

Other misconceptions about French wines are that their labels are hard to understand, their flavours are too aggressive and they're only meant to be drunk with food.

Though there may be a wee bit of truth to all three complaints, don't let that intimidate you.

Ripe, balanced and fruit-forward, the wines from the southern regions are a great introduction (or reintroduction) to France.

'It's just a child's game,' says Madu

Impromptu coach. Ticats running back told Prime to 'go out and relax and play the game' against Eskimos Mossis Madu is making a timely return to the Hamilton Tiger-Cats' offence.

A hip pointer that also affected his back and spine forced Madu to miss last weekend's 25-23 home win over Edmonton. But with incumbent C.J. Gable (shoulder) going on the six-game injured list this week, Madu gives the Ticats an experienced tailback for Saturday's game in Winnipeg.

"Man, I hate sitting out, I hate being injured," Madu said Thursday. "I'd never missed a game in my life before and to miss that one game it hurt me."

"I wanted to go out and help my teammates."

The Ticats were in a real bind against Edmonton when Gable was hurt on their first play from scrimmage. With no other running back on the roster, sophomore fullback C.O. Prime, a converted linebacker, was pressed into action, forcing Madu, 26, a native of Bedford, Texas, to assume an impromptu role as running-backs coach.

"He knows the offence because he's in meetings with us but I wanted to give him a little pep talk and provide some pointers," Madu said. "I just told him to go out and relax and play the game."

"When it comes down to it, it's just a child's game that we played as kids."

Mossis Madu warms up before a game against the Ottawa Redblacks in July in Hamilton, Ont.

TOM SZCZERBOWSKI/GETTY IMAGES

The six-foot-one, 255-pound Prime had five carries for 17 yards, added a one-yard reception and provided solid pass protection. Not bad considering the 25-year-old Montreal native last carried the football eight years ago while in high school.

"He went and did his thing," Madu said. "After the game I was so happy for him."

Now it's Madu who's all smiles about being on the field as Hamilton (4-7) looks for its fourth win in five games. The Ticats enter weekend action tied atop the East Division with Toronto and Montreal (both 4-8). THE CANADIAN PRESS

Week 15 pick

Ticats at Bombers, Saturday, 5:30 p.m., TSN

Hamilton (4-7) has won three-of-four games since quarterback Zach Collaros's return and is 3-0 at Tim Hortons Field with him. Unfortunately, this game is at Investors Group Field and Hamilton is a dismal 0-6 on the road. Winnipeg (6-6) comes off a bye week, but it's unclear if quarterback Drew Willy (shoulder) will play. If not, backup Brian Brohm will make his first regular-season start since January 2011 with the NFL's Buffalo Bills. Winnipeg has the CFL's second-leading runner in Nic Grigsby (647 yards) but averages just 76.2 yards rushing per game. Hamilton's defence has 10 sacks in its last two games and is expected to have defensive end Justin Hickman in the lineup.

The perfect script.

Derek Jeter capped his Yankee Stadium farewell with a game-winning single in the bottom of the ninth inning, the latest — and perhaps last — storybook moment in his charmed and illustrious career, which gave New York a 6-5 victory Thursday night over the Baltimore Orioles.

Serenaded with adoring chants that echoed through the Bronx night, Jeter tipped his cap several times at shortstop and drove in three runs. He launched an early double off the left-centre wall and saved the best for last: a sharp, opposite-field single to right that knocked in the winning run.

He's always had a flair for the most electrifying kind of drama, and this night was destined to be no different.

As if it was planned all along, closer David Robertson (4-5) gave up a two-run homer in the top of the ninth to Adam Jones and a tying shot to Steve Pearce with two outs.

Jose Pirela hit a leadoff single in the bottom of the ninth against Evan Meek (0-4) and advanced on Brett Gardner's sacrifice. Jeter lined the next pitch through a hole on the right side, and pinch-runner Antao Richardson slid home ahead of Nick Markakis's throw.

An elated Jeter jumped and raised both arms between first and second. Yankees players rushed out to engulf him as former teammates lined up near the New York dugout waiting to greet the retiring captain.

"It was above and beyond anything that I've ever dreamt of," Jeter said.

NHL. Avalanche head coach pushing for his team to improve despite stiff competition

After putting up 112 points and winning the Jack Adams Trophy as coach of the year in his first season behind an NHL bench, what can Patrick Roy possibly do for an encore?

Even a coach with Roy's self-confidence doesn't see his second season with the gifted young Colorado Avalanche going that well.

"There are a lot of coaches that are better than me, but I believe I'll continue to learn," Roy said Thursday. "And the worst part of this is, I'm sure I'm going to be a better coach along the way and I'm probably never going to win the Jack Adams again."

Roy was lured away last season to become head coach and vice-president of hockey operations for the Avalanche, who he helped win two Stanley Cups after his bitter parting with the Canadiens in 1996.

The fiery Roy's impact was felt immediately on a team stacked with budding stars like Matt Duchene, Gabriel Landeskog and 2013 first overall draft pick Nathan MacKinnon.

The Avs finished second overall in the Western Conference and tied a franchise record with 52 victories, although they lost in seven games to Minnesota in the first round of the playoffs.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Take advantage of the Sun moving through Libra to sit back and relax. If you have not finished something by now chances are it will never see the light of day, so forget it.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Don't think about all the bad things that go on in the world – think about how you personally can make it a better place in some small way. Get to it.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

There are things going on behind the scenes of which you are only vaguely aware. Keep your eyes and ears open.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Developments in your social life may have the edge taken off them by bad news concerning your finances today. Mercury's move into the money area of your chart tomorrow will bring an obvious answer.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Saturn in your sign does not seem restrictive of late but that does not mean you can loosen your hold on the purse strings.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

On the work front someone is trying to undermine you by talking you down in front of employers. Don't worry, they won't get anywhere.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You have been keeping to yourself a lot in recent days and loved ones are wondering why. Put their minds at rest by telling them your plans.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

It may not feel right that certain people have the power to force you in a certain direction but in a matter of days you will be glad it happened that way.

♓ Pisces

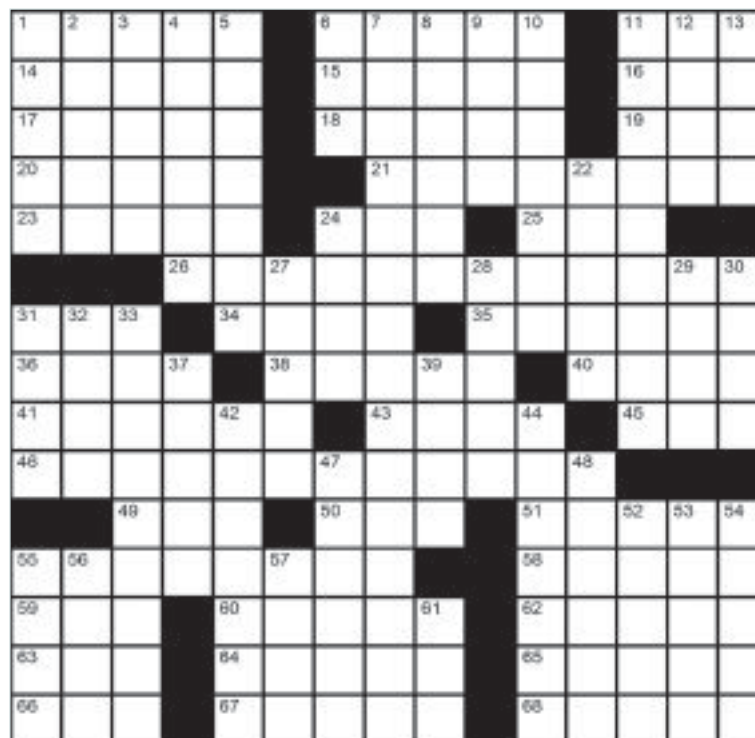

Feb. 20 - March 20

Someone you live or work with will be irritable in the extreme over the next 24 hours. There is no point trying to reason with them or cheer them up because they enjoy being negative. Just stay out of their way.
